

My goal is books.

On Saturday, June 27, people around the world will be attempting to read as many books of the New Testament as possible in a single day.

Sponsors are committing to donate a certain amount of money per book that readers read on that day. By reading the shortest books of the New Testament, most people can easily read 17 books in a single day. To do more than that will take serious effort and a lot of time!

All funds raised will go toward the production of a new book for children in Africa based on Jesus' parable of the Prodigal Son.

Rules:

1. Make a goal!

Most people can easily read the 17 shortest books of the New Testament in a few hours.

2. Get sponsors.

Ask people to donate a certain amount for each book you read.

3. Tell your friends.

Let everyone on Twitter and Facebook know what you're doing.

4. Read silently or aloud!

On the day of the read-a-thon you can read to yourself or aloud. No listening to audio!

5. Share your favorite verse (and a selfie)!

Each time you finish a book, take a break and share your favorite verse online or with a friend. Share a selfie or other photo, too.

6. Have fun!

Drink lots of fluids. Give your eyes a break every 25 minutes. Spend at least 10 minutes an hour walking around or exercising!
